[[1] To the Flood. [2] The Exode did not begin until Terah's death; then Abram left Haran and the Exode began, as is clearly proved by Acts vii.4. [3] Exode in Egypt from Abraham to the wilderness-state. [4] Joshua was a young man when he came out of Egypt, Ex. xxxiii.11; could not have been more than 45 years old then. Eighty-five when he entered Canaan, and 110 when he died, leaves 25 years. [5] Judges begin. See Judg.ii.7-15. [6] This ends the Judges - 448 years. Acts xiii.20; also ch.viii. [7] Samuel could not have been more than 38 when Eli died. Then, Israel was lamenting the loss of the Ark more than 20 years. Samuel judged Israel some years after, and became old, and his sons judged Israel. He must have been 62 or 63 when Saul was made king.] p. 2, Para. 1, [BIBLECHR].

If this Chronology is not correct, I shall despair of ever getting from the Bible and history, a true account of the age of the world. At any rate, I shall rest satisfied here, and wait the event; time will determine. As it respects the text in 1Kin.vi.1, it cannot be reconciled with the history of the Judges and the statement of St. Paul; I have therefore followed two witnesses instead of one. As it respects Samuel, I have no doubt of as long a period as 21 years; but it may possibly have exceeded 24 years. p. 4, Para. 2, [BIBLECHR].
